NCI roundtable participation · 2006

Historical record excerpt | Prepared November 3, 2026

Source: personalized NIH/NCI invitation dated December 22, 2005, addressed to Doug Liles, Program Director, Good Samaritan Institute. Signed by Ernest Hawk, Lynn M. Matrisian, and William G. Nelson.

The National Cancer Institute (NCI) has established a working group to evaluate the status of its investment in translational research and envision its future. The Translational Research Working Group (TRWG) was convened under the authority of the National Cancer Advisory Board and is composed of prominent members of the scientific, medical, and advocacy communities, representing areas of interest across the continuum from late-stage basic research to early clinical trials. In order to increase input into the TRWG's deliberations, we will be hosting a Roundtable Meeting. You have been nominated to attend this meeting, to be held February 23-24, 2006, in Phoenix, AZ.

Nomination excerpt transcription: “be hosting a Roundtable Meeting. You have been nominated to attend this meeting, to be held February 23–24, 2006, in Phoenix, AZ.”

Source: Translational Research Working Group Roundtable Meeting Participant List, page 6 (undated). Selected entry (membership legend transcribed below):

Doug Liles, M.S.
Director
Good Samaritan Institute

Roster entry: Doug Liles, M.S.; Director; Good Samaritan Institute. The degree abbreviation is reproduced as printed in the historical record.

The roster legend reads “* TRWG Member.” Doug’s entry has no asterisk. The supported role is roundtable participant, not formal TRWG member. A completed affirmative response and a first-person post-meeting report are retained privately as corroboration.

Selected excerpts only. Personal contact details, signatures, and unrelated material are omitted. Originals retained in the private archive. Historical participation does not imply current affiliation or institutional endorsement.